

Will phosphates precipitate in an HPLC column - FAQ

Phosphoric acid will not precipitate in the columns. Sodium phosphate (which is not recommended) but which is often used as a buffer, will precipitate in the columns and should be avoided as a storage solvent for all HPLC columns.